Outdoors group studies proposals

Fisheries options not broad enough

The Board of Directors of the 460-member Haliburton Highlands Outdoors Association has dedicated two meetings in August specifically to addressing the Ministry of Natural Resources' proposed lake trout and brook trout management proposals.

The association agrees that the fish populations have declined in recent years. The board, however, does not endorse the options as set out in the questionnaire distributed by the ministry.

During discussions at the association's meetings, a common complaint with the ministry proposals was that they were too narrow in scope. It was felt that the wording of the questionnaire was aimed at substantiating the proposals and not directed at the real cause of the problems.

It was unanimously agreed among association directors that they reject the ministry proposals as they stand.

The association has drafted a letter to the ministry strongly urging a delay of one year in the decision-making process. The primary reasoning behind the delay is to await the outcome of the 1995 provincial election, in the hopes that the next provincial government can be convinced to direct more funds to the Ministry of Natural Resources budget for such things as stocking and enforcement.

The closure of the winter fishery is not an option that the association would endorse. It was felt that the economic impact of on the county would be enormous.

A number of suggestions were offered by the association's directors as alternatives to the ministry proposals.

At the top of the list is the channelling of all fishing licence revenue into the ministry's budget to be used for fishery enhancement. When the Ontario Resident Angling Licence was introduced in 1987, the province's anglers and other stakeholders endorsed the licence only if the money was added to the ministry's budget to be spent on the fishery. Further, the government of the day promised that angling licence funds

What's more fun than a barrel of monkeys? A birthday party at CHACE Daycare, says Vicky McLaughlin. Vicky's grin says it all: There were plenty of games, contests and activities for the children, parents and staff throughout the afternoon. And, as Vicky's grin attests, there was plenty of fun. She was one of many children to walk, run and crawl through the obstacle course. The event marked the anniversary of the licenced day care centre on Prentice Street in Minden. For the past seven years CHACE has been providing day care services to children between the ages of 18 months and 12 years.

Calling all candidates

It may seem a bit early, but we're now calling all candidates for municipal office to notify The Times of their plans to run in the November elections.

In an effort to provide the county's seasonal residents with information on the election, we plan to publish a list of declared candidates in the next edition of The Times. Although this is still very early in the process, we feel it is valuable in the sense that it encourages interest and participation among seasonal residents at a time when many of them are still in the area. By no means will this be a complete listing of candidates, but it will be an indication of the level of interest in serving on municipal councils. It may also encourage potential candidates who may be "sitting on the fence", to become involved.

The date of the municipal elections is November 14. There are also advance polls on November 5 and 9. A third advance poll may be held at the discretion of the municipality.

Candidates can register with their municipal office at any time until October 14, and nomination papers must be filed between October 11 and 14.

All Haliburton County and north Victoria County candidates who have already made a decision to run are asked to notify the editorial department at The Times by this Thursday, August 25 at noon in order that we can include them in this preliminary list.

would complement the ministry's budget, with no cuts to the regular budget because of the influx of millions of dollars from the sale of licences.

The confidence of those who endorsed the resident angling licence on those terms has been betrayed.

Second on the association's list is an increase in stocking and other enhancement of angling opportunities for alternate species in lakes that don't have a confirmed population of naturally reproducing lake trout. The directors felt this option would divert some of the fishing pressure and thereby relieve some of the stress from the lake trout and brook trout producing lakes.

Walleye and rainbow trout were two of the alternate species that the association officials agreed would be the most popular.

Delaying the opening of the winter fishing from January 1 to January 15 in lakes identified with natural reproduction of the two trout species is another option the association suggests. The first two weeks of the season are traditionally among the most productive in terms of numbers of fish caught. It was felt that a delay at that time would be of greatest benefit to the fishery and still offer anglers the opportunity to enjoy a traditional winter sport.

Association directors suggest that, in concert with the enhancement of alternate species fishing opportunities, a two-week delay in the season opening would be an effective option.

Another suggestion was that government funds, from the Canadian Fisheries Involvement Program and others, be made available to qualified clubs and organizations for hatchery and other aquaculture projects that could benefit all resource users. Fish could be raised by organizations such as the Haliburton Highlands Outdoors Association for stocking purposes. The association is currently raising 5,000 rainbow trout, which will be released into several area water bodies this fall. Those fish will be an average of one pound each, which greatly increases the potential for survival once they are released.

Winter anglers are currently allowed to fish with two lines. The association would endorse the reduction to one line per angler, as another option.

Numerous other thoughts were offered during the association's August meetings, including the better regulation of water levels to ensure that trout eggs aren't left high and dry; encouraging catch and release angling; allowing local ministries to deal with the lakes within their own jurisdiction, rather than a blanket policy for the whole south-central region of Ontario; better baitfish management; introducing measures to control the numbers of coarse fish such as suckers; and increasing enforcement to curb poaching and deter those who keep more than their limit.

The subject of closing the winter fishery was discussed at length. Drag Lake, which has been closed to winter fishing since the mid-1980s, was cited as an example of the ineffectiveness of this tactic. Even though Drag Lake hasn't been open for winter fishing for several years, the trout fishing hasn't improved.

The logbook at Snowdon Community Park shows few people have discovered this unique public facility over the past decade.

Where is Snowdon Park?

Where is Snowdon Community Park?

The 100-acre tract of park land is one of the best kept secrets in the Highlands. Judging by the entries in the park's logbook, only a few dozen people have made use of the hiking and skiing trails that wind their way through forests and along the edge of wetlands.

In one sense, the limited use has been a blessing. The cabin and three kiosks in the park are still intact and free of graffiti or other vandalism. On the other hand, though, there has been little attention paid to the upkeep of the trails and portions are quickly disappearing beneath the new growth of vegetation.

The property was sold, for a nominal fee, to Snowdon Township about 10 years ago. The trails, buildings and bridges were developed with the help of winter works grants. However, since the grants ran out the park has seen little maintenance.

Entries in the log book tell the story of the park's gradual deterioration. Entries from 1986 and 87, for example, note the excellent condition of the ski trails. The comments become less complimentary in 1988, and in 1989 one person writes: "How about applying for another grant . . . getting worse." Finally, a 1991 entry reads: "Hope we can find the trail. Any progress on that grant?"

Well, there has finally been some progress. The township is in the process of handing the management of the park to the Haliburton Highlands Field Naturalists group, which has already secured a small grant and has access to volunteers who are interested in redeveloping the park.

Verne Graham, president of the Field Naturalists, said his group is ready to sign a management agreement with Snowdon Township. He also notes that the Federation of Ontario Naturalists has agreed to provide $2,500 for use in the park.

Graham said there is a great deal of enthusiasm for this project. He said members of the Field Naturalists, as well as many people who live in the area, have volunteered to help out.

Snowdon Council is also pleased to see the renewed interest in the park and last week approved a rezoning of the property from Rural to Open Space. The new zoning recognizes the use as parkland and prohibits the construction of residential buildings. However, it does allow for the construction of park buildings.

Graham said he would eventually like to see the trails and bridges restored. In addition, he is hoping an interpretive centre can be built.

The field naturalists are having their annual general meeting on August 28, when plans for the park will be discussed further. The meeting is scheduled for 1:30 p.m. at the Minden Wild Water Preserve clubhouse.

Snowdon Community Park is situated just north of Gelert with its entrance off County Road 1. There is a sign, but it too has seen better days and is very difficult to read.

The Importance Of Explaining Death To A Child Is Elementary.

Adults understand all too well the inevitable nature of death. But to a young child, the death of someone close can often be a confusing, disturbing, and incomprehensible experience.

That's why we encourage parents to talk with their children about death before the problem arises. We have several suggestions that can help:

1. Keep your level of explanation appropriate to your child's level of understanding and development.
2. Listen carefully to your child's questions and make sure none are left unanswered.
3. When your child's questions have been answered, stop. Usually your child only wants satisfactory answers to specific questions.

To learn more about the importance of explaining death to a child, call or stop in for complimentary literature.

Kilcoo campers hike through Yukon

For the past several years, campers from Kilcoo Camp on Gull Lake have ventured far beyond the borders of Ontario to experience canoe and hiking trips in the Arctic barrens, the Yukon and Alaska.

This year Kilcoo selected nine campers, and three highly qualified and experienced staff to hike through and camp at different places in the Yukon. Two groups were established from the 12 hikers and they went on their own separate trips at different times last month.

The two groups were hosted by Mr. and Mrs. David Moyle. David was a camper and leader at Kilcoo from 1955-1968, and is now the Executive Director of the Tourism Industry Association of the Yukon.

The groups were able to take canoe trips down the Yukon River, camp in Alaska, hike in Whitehorse and travel by train to British Columbia. The campers enjoyed site-seeing cultural and historical attractions in places such as Dawson City and Whitehorse.

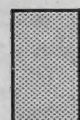

On July 18 the two groups met with John Latimer, owner of Kilcoo Camp since 1955 and Director from 1956-1981, at Moyle's residence for a barbecue. Latimer said he and his wife felt they had to make a visit to see some more of the country which the campers have raved about over the past years.

A special guest at the barbecue was Doug Phillips, Minister of Tourism and Minister of Education for the Territory. Phillips warmly welcomed the Kilcooites, encouraging them to return to the Yukon and told them to bring their parents next time.

Anglers bolster Gull Lake trout habitat

by Jerry Grozelle

Two lake trout spawning beds on Gull Lake have been improved thanks to the efforts of the Haliburton Highlands Outdoors Association, in co-operation with the Gull Lake Cottagers' Association and the Ministry of Natural Resources.

Almost 100 tons of rock rubble were deposited on two spawning shoals off St. Helena and Victoria Islands. About 35 to 40 people took part in the exercise, including the truck drivers, barge operator and others. About two-thirds of the people who helped out with the project were HHOA members and a dozen people from the cottage association volunteered their labour. Hawk River Construction provided the barge to transport the rocks to the spawning beds at cost.

Ministry biologist Tim Haxton and conservation officer Bob Gater identified the two locations as prime spawning habitat and marked the sites for the workers. One of the spawning beds covered an area of about 100 feet by 30 feet and the other was about 60 feet by 30 feet.

One of the sites had started to silt over, making it less suitable as a spawning area. The other was increased in size to give the native trout population more area to deposit their eggs.

The first truck load of rocks arrived at Braeside Lodge, the headquarters for the project, at about 7:30 a.m. and workers laboured until 6 p.m. to complete the task.

"Everybody was pretty tired," Gater said.

Carl Heins, a director of the outdoors association, said transporting the rocks to the sites from the Braeside dock was the most time-consuming task. It took the 75 horsepower outboard 45 minutes to churn its way to the nearest shoal, a distance of about seven-eighths of a mile. It was pushing a load of about 18 tons of rock and 15 to 20 passengers each time.

Once the cargo was at the site, the volunteers had it unloaded in about 15 minutes of non-stop shovelling and pitching the fist-sized rocks overboard. Larry Hewitt, owner of the barge, kept it in position to spread the rocks evenly.

Gater said that a ministry scuba diver with an underwater video camera plans to monitor the two sites

About 100 tons of rock was deposited over two lake trout spawning beds in Gull Lake as part of a co-operative program by the Haliburton Highlands Outdoors Association, the Gull Lake Cottagers' Association and the Ministry of Natural Resources.

during this fall's spawning run to determine the activity on the newly-placed rubble. He said the ministry may also place some fry traps (traps to catch the emerging hatchlings) on the sites in March, to assess the spawning success.

Trap nettings, placed by the ministry on these shoals, have determined that they are among the best spawning locations in the lake.

Fish weighing more than 20 pounds have been netted and released in Gull Lake. Gater says 22 to 23 pound fish are exceptional for this lake.

HHOA directors applied to the ministry for a Canadian Fisheries Involvement Program (CFIP) grant and $3,000 was approved for the project. Gater explained that proposals for CFIP grants are accepted at local ministry offices. They are then submitted to the regional office, where they are assessed and prioritized.

"Sustaining the fishery is a great benefit to people around here," Gater said. "Gull Lake has the most fishing pressure of any of the lakes in the area."

Gater says the accessibility of the lake accounts for much of the fishing pressure, especially during the winter fishing season. An average of 80 to 100 ice huts are paced on Gull Lake each winter.

"It was a co-operative effort," Gater said. "We're planning to work together again. It gives the outdoors association a sense of stewardship and I think everybody had a good time."

The outdoors association completed a similar project on Kennis Lake last summer.

No delays

Delaying action on the protection of lake and brook trout fisheries in Haliburton County is an option the Ministry of Natural Resources should not consider.

Unsatisfied with the options presented by the ministry, the Haliburton Highlands Outdoors Association is calling for a one-year delay in the decision process to provide more time for public input. While we agree input is valuable, we cannot endorse the association's call for a delay.

The trout fisheries throughout Haliburton County are in trouble and something must soon be done to protect this valuable resource. If the ministry bows to the pressure of the 460-member outdoors association, the situation will continue to worsen. This will only serve to further justify the imposition of severe restrictions on fishing.

The ministry has forwarded a number of options for consideration and these have been unanimously rejected by the directors of the outdoors association. The association's concerns are justified and input from this consumer group may well provide the ministry with some more palatable options in the future. However, the fisheries need immediate protection to halt the decline of trout populations.

We feel the ministry should approve a strict interim plan for the preservation of the trout stocks and open the doors for alternate actions for the future.

Fishing is a wonderful sport and an important element of the Highlands economy. Let's make sure the opportunities are here for generations to come by acting now.

R.D.

Fisheries management input is welcomed

Editor,

Re: New Management Proposed for Naturally Reproducing Lake Trout

This letter is being written in response to recent letters to the editor requesting another open house meeting to discuss the various options being presented to help manage naturally reproducing lake trout populations in South Central Ontario.

I will not go into the options being considered as these are clearly outlined in the package provided with the questionnaire available at the ministry offices. Many people have already received these and returned them with their comments. In the initial launch of this initiative, seven public meetings were held. One of the meetings was held at the Community Centre in Minden. The Minden meeting was advertised in both local papers two weeks prior to the meeting and many people were contacted personally to make them aware of the meeting. The turnout was low, as it was at all meetings. However, the meetings did spark the interest and start the flow of public input. Since these meetings, anyone interested in discussing the proposed changes has had the opportunity to come in to our office and make their views known to our biologists, to provide their comments in writing or to simply complete and return the questionnaire.

Many individuals, and most stakeholders, have been in and have made their views known. We have received extensive input and continue to receive input with the extension of the deadline to September 23rd. Our doors are open to anyone with further comments. Due to the opportunities which have already been provided for input and the large number of responses received on this issue to date, we can see no further benefit in holding additional public meetings.

I think anyone who has studied this issue carefully will agree something has to be done to control the overharvest of lake trout. The options which our biologists feel will have the desired effect have been presented. The choices are not easy to accept and the final decision will not be easy to make.

The Ministry of Natural Resources has the responsibility of managing the fisheries and therefore making the decision. We certainly know the lake trout fishery is very important to many residents, both permanent and seasonal, and we take this responsibility very seriously. All input will be considered but a final decision will have to be made if we are to have a strong naturally reproducing lake trout fishery in the Minden/Haliburton area for future generations to enjoy.

If you have not already done so, please drop in to our office on Highway 35 and pick up a questionnaire. If you would like to discuss the issue in more detail, one of our staff would be happy to meet with you.

Office hours are from 8 a.m. to 4:30 p.m., Monday to Friday. Your input can be provided any time up to September 23rd, 1994. The Ministry of Natural Resources office number is (705) 286-1521.

Auxiliary member responds to nurses' allegations

Editor,

I would like to respond to the many letters to the editor in both local papers concerning allegations pointed at me that have proven to be mis-quotes.

I did not go to the County Council meeting to speak, but when Warden Jim McMahon asked if anyone had something to say, I asked why the Director of Nursing of Hyland Crest had been dismissed. This question seemed to open a can of worms. If I had wished to speak at council, I would have written for permission to be placed on the agenda. This was the first county council meeting since the DON was dismissed "without cause" and I wanted to hear what explanation the county would have.

Accusations have been printed in both papers that I have damaged the reputations of all staff members at Hyland Crest. I have never suggested that the kitchen, dietary, laundry, housekeeping, maintenance or office staff, activities or adjuvant of any wrong doings towards the residents. It is, as stated by Mr. McMahon, "a couple of bad apples" in the nursing department that concern me. I have been accused of accepting financial support to join an organization for the benefit of the seniors at Hyland Crest. This is absolutely untrue. Each week, I do the personal shopping for any resident needing it, at my own expense for gas, even as far away as Peterborough. My reward is a smile, a hug or a kiss. No monetary recompense has ever been asked for or expected.

Also, when Mary Guillemain and Jean Robson went to Toronto to attend the Advocacy Seminar, they paid for their own meals, hotel and transportation. (I did not attend the seminar). The residents felt the need for this advocacy committee was of great concern to them. Therefore, they provided the fees for the seminar for the two auxiliary members to attend, from residents' council funds.

As for the two letters from two RNAs who have previously worked at Hyland Crest, they have both been away from the facility for so long that they are not able to comment on the allegations that are printed, concerning any verbal or physical abuse at Hyland Crest.

In my opinion, the description of a volunteer is one who is kind, considerate, caring, helpful, understanding and cooperative. I feel as an auxiliary member, a volunteer and a member of the advocacy committee, I have contributed to the needs and well being of the residents of Hyland Crest. In my 12 years as a volunteer at the Home, these qualifications have been adequate, but as one member of the nursing staff states "it is obvious that the volunteers are the ones who need more educating." No education has ever been offered to me. Furthermore, as stated in letters, I have never moved a resident who I have seen on the floor. I have enough common sense to realize that you do not move anyone who has fallen. I have reported these incidents to the nursing station or to the office, which then calls a nurse.

No statement has been made that I have witnessed a

A tip of the hat to Daves on 35

Editor,

A hearty congratulations to Daves on 35 for their leadership in the Adopt-a-Highway program. But isn't it a shame that such a program has to exist in the first place? Everyone should take personal responsibility for keeping our streets litter free.

We've been dismayed to see our beautiful town of Minden piling high with littered cans, bottles, snack food wrap, cigarette packs and other debris. We know there are insufficient garbage disposal containers in the vicinity but dumping on the street is not the answer. We should be setting a good example to our kids, our future generation. We spend about once a week walking around town picking up other people's litter and it is so disheartening.

A town that is clean, well cared for and offers a pleasant ambience is a source of pride to its citizens and sends a message of welcome to its visitors.

Taylor agrees with Taylor

Editor

As a relatively new cottager to the Minden area, I read with interest the letter of J. Taylor (August 8/94) referring to the common sense in the health care debate.

I also have been involved for many years in the political and health field, and I agree with many of the direct comments made by J. Taylor.

There is no doubt that our health care costs have to be controlled, but to make change just for the sake of change, and to possibly increase cost and reduce the level of service does not make sense.

I realize there is no easy answer to our serious health costs; attacking the problem as we have in the past does not seem to be the solution.

Unfortunately in the process of dealing with major issues "common sense" is one of the last items to be brought into the process.

True north strong and cautious

O Canada. It's true, you know — this country does drag a huge psychic sea anchor behind it, slowing down its passage through the international shipping lanes. Canadians are diffident, cautious — second guessers by nature.

Americans say "Hell, let's go for it!"

Canadians say "But what will the neighbours think?"

Canadianism has its good side. We don't run roughshod over other national sensibilities. It will be a long time before Canadian troops invade Grenada, subvert the government of Chile or bomb Iran. It's not our style.

But there's a down side too. There's a draggy side-effect to being Canadian. Don't take my word for it. Ask the Kinsmans.

Bob and Rita Kinsman own a very successful motel/restaurant complex in Cottage Country — the Muskoka district of Ontario. The Blue Heron restaurant and motel has seven rental units, a 23-seat restaurant, a lakeside dock and a one-bedroom apartment.

A success story — with just one tiny black fly in the ointment. The Kinsmans were approaching retirement age. They wanted to get out of the grind and enjoy themselves.

And they hit on a novel way to do that. Bob and Rita Kinsman announced that they were sponsoring a competition. Contestants had to first pony up $100 each. They had to write a 200-word essay explaining why they would like to take over the Blue Heron Restaurant and Motel. After all the entries were in, judges supplied by the South Muskoka Literacy Society would go over the essays and choose the grand prize winner.

In other words, for a hundred bucks and a couple of cents worth of ballpoint ink, somebody was going to win a flourishing resort business, worth close to half a million bucks.

The Kinsmans are an adventurous couple but they're not flat out crazy. They reserved the right to cancel the contest and refund the money if they got less than 4,000 entries.

It became a media sensation. The newspaper wire services picked up the story. TV crews showed up to film the Kinsmans and shoot a little footage of the sun going down from the Blue Heron dock.

The story got so much airplay that even the bureaucrats in Ottawa got wind of it.

And they proceeded to do what bureaucrats do best: they killed it stone dead.

Ottawa announced that because of the minimum entry requirement the contest was illegal.

"The police said we could appeal," noted Rita Kinsman ruefully, "but it would have to be to the Supreme Court of Canada and that could easily cost $100,000."

So the contest is dead. The 300 entrants who have written their essays and paid their $100 entry fee will get their money back and the Kinsmans will try to sell their business the conventional, Canadian way. Through a real estate agent on the open market.

Pity. A pity that a little grass roots initiative gets stomped to death by the beancounters in Ottawa.

Reminds me of the story Derek Burney, Canada's ambassador to the U.S. used to tell about the Newfoundland fisherman carrying a pail of lobsters up from the wharf. A passerby warned him that the lobsters could get away because there was no lid on the pail.

"Not to worry, boy" says the fisherman. "These are Canadian lobsters. Soon as one makes it to the top, the others will drag him down."

Time to pull together at Hyland Crest

resident being physically abused, but I have witnessed instances of verbal abuse. I have verbally reported same to the administrator of Hyland Crest. On one occasion, I filed a written report. The DON made sure I got a written reply to same.

It saddens me to see the residents rights abused. Their rights should be upheld the same as the staff's and yours or my own.

I credit the great majority of the nursing staff for responding professionally, but as Mr. McMahon said, "Everyone won't be 100 per cent the way you want them." Some of the nursing staff do not have enough qualifications to deal with seniors who suffer from dementia, the process of aging or of aggressive behaviour.

Since 1986, when Mr. Sid Brown retired, there have been four DONs dismissed at Hyland Crest. There have been two people acting as interim administrators on three occasions and there have also been four administrators, all since 1986. The record is despicable. Just think what all these changes and dismissals have already cost the county. Also remember that in management, it is the board of the home which has the final say as to who is hired and who is dismissed. The last DON was hired by this board and two and a half years into her employment, they dismissed her "without cause". There is no doubt that this action is again going to cost the voters and taxpayers of this county a tremendous amount. It has already cost the taxpayers $11,000 for legal fees relating to a recent legal case. Also we had to pay staff to attend the trial plus meals and transportation. How much more can the taxpayers afford to pay for these goings on?

It has been said that the volunteers should walk in the nurses' shoes for a day. Maybe so. But, alas, the nurses should ride in a resident's wheel chair for a day.

So, let the past be the past, and in the future let's all pull together and make life better for the residents of Hyland Crest.

Muriel Harrington,
Minden.

Unbalanced coverage of trout troubles

Editor,

Your coverage of the trout management problem has been unbalanced and one-sided. You have emphasized the negative impact that a reduced fishing period would have on local businesses and tourism, without considering the longer term economic and environmental damage that will occur if something is not done right now about declining fish stocks. The devastated fish populations along the east coast of Canada, the overwhelming problem of industrial pollution, and the vastly reduced timber resources, are all glaring examples of the negative impact of short-term thinking.

I enjoy a trout dinner as much as anyone else, and I am sympathetic to those who derive their livelihood from sport fishing. I am also aware that nearly everyone seems to be of the view that most of the lakes in this area are close to "fished out" already. If there is a mistake to be made in solving the problem of declining trout stocks, let us make it in favour of the trout. For my part, I am more than ready to support a cut-back in the fishing season, especially in the winter, in order to see if the trout stocks begin to recover. I suspect many others are of the same view.

Hats off to Daves on 35

Editor,

I was pleased to see the article on Daves Adopt-A-Highway sign and then the article in last week's paper. Three or four years ago, it was started in Michigan by Guides, Scouts, church groups and businesses. They took on a two to three mile stretch and many times we've seen them clearing up the debris. Perhaps more here will take up the challenge. With all the government cutbacks, our highways have become a real mess and this is one way to keep our county clean.

Hats off to Dave who got the ball rolling.

DU Dinner raises funds for wetlands improvement

by Jerry Grozelle

An estimated $11,000 to $12,000 was raised at the inaugural Haliburton County Ducks Unlimited Dinner and Auction at the Wigamog Inn Thursday evening.

Treasurer of the local committee, Lorne Hoppenreys, said the figure is a rough guess since some of the bills haven't been paid. Hoppenreys termed the event "a great success."

The local chapter of Ducks Unlimited Canada was formed in January and preparations for the first fundraising event in the county started at that time.

Area businesses and individuals contributed to the success of the event by donating items for the auctions and raffles as well as cash donations and sponsorship of limited edition Ducks Unlimited items.

Besides coaxing the best bids from the audience, auctioneer Les Brittan kept the evening's guests entertained with his wit and a steady stream of jokes.

Committee chairman Jerry Walker was pleased with the success of the event.

"I was really happy with the way it went. There were some good buys, the meal was excellent, it was a nice facility and the auctioneer did a great job," Walker said. "It was a good night and I think everybody really enjoyed it."

Walker credited the hard work of the entire committee for the success of the event.

"For our first year, I think we did really well," Walker added. "We're already looking forward to next year."

Walker offered a special thanks to feature artist Gary Chapman for his donation of an original painting for the auction. He also thanked the individuals and businesses for sponsorships.

"On behalf of the entire committee, I want to thank all the businesses and individuals for their many generous donations and contributions," he said.

The profits from the Haliburton/Minden area event will be used for wetlands habitat preservation and enhancement. More than 700 projects have been undertaken in Ontario by Ducks Unlimited since 1974.

DU has spent about $300,000 on three major projects in Haliburton County recently.

Successful bidder: Rolly Letourneau of Haliburton (above) is the proud owner of a Gary Chapman original watercolour painting. Letourneau was the high bidder for the painting at the inaugural Ducks Unlimited Dinner and Auction at the Wigamog Inn Thursday night. The event was the culmination of six months' worth of organization by a dozen committee members. An estimated $12,000 was raised for the cause. The event was a sell-out, with 160 people taking part in the evening's festivities.

Fastball League playoffs coming up

The North Country Fastball League playoffs are set to start this week. The Minden Hawks will take on the second place West Guilford team in the first round. Game one of that series is slated for Tuesday, August 23 in Minden. Start time is 7:30 p.m.

The Hawks finished seventh in the eight-team league with 10 points. That's only four points behind the third place Wilberforce squad with 14.

The Lochlin Beagle's Hounds finished first with 25 points, followed by West Guilford with 24. Haliburton was fourth with 13, followed by Kinmount with 12, the Haliburton Orioles with 11, the Hawks with 10 and Lochlin with six.

Craig Smith, player/coach of the Minden Hawks said that it is a very competitive league but his team is in it mostly for the fun of playing the game.

The first round of playoffs will be a best-of-three series.

Ball two: Minden Hawks batter Sean Perrin watches as an incoming pitch sails high of the mark. The Minden team gave up a 14-4 loss to the Haliburton Orioles in this North Country Fastball League game at Minden Wednesday.

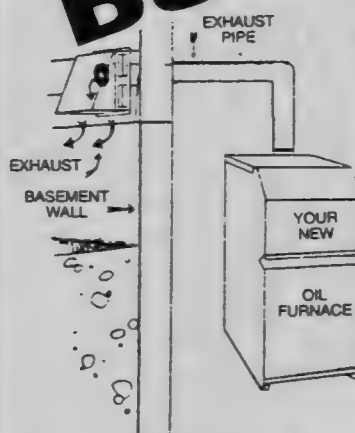

New courts appreciated: Bonnie Boretzky of Ottawa returns a serve from her sister-in-law Claire Fainer of Toronto, Wednesday at the Minden tennis courts. The two women left their husbands to babysit the kids at the cottage near Miner's Bay while they enjoyed a few hours on the courts last week. Fainer commended the municipality on the "wonderful job" it has done with the courts. The duo managed to put the courts to good use several days while they were on vacation in the area.

Support the Minden Terry Fox Run

September 18, 9 a.m. at the Minden Community Centre

Minden is one of more than 3,400 communities across Canada that will be holding a Terry Fox Run on Sunday September 18.

Runners, walkers and riders of all ages will be taking part in the 14th annual run, named after the initiator of the Marathon of Hope.

Terry Fox lost his right leg to cancer in 1977 and in 1980 he started a cross-Canada run to raise money for cancer research. Terry Fox started his journey by dipping his artificial leg in the Atlantic Ocean. He averaged 26 miles per day for 143 days. But as he reached Thunder Bay, Ontario he was overcome by a return of his cancer and was forced to discontinue his Marathon of Hope. He died in June of 1981.

His dream was to raise the equivalent of $1 for every person in Canada. That dream was realized by February 1, 1981, a few months before cancer claimed his life. By that date, the total raised from the Marathon of Hope was $24.17-million.

Terry Fox did much more than raise this huge amount of money; he left a legacy of hope and brought the need for cancer research to the forefront. Since the Marathon of Hope began in 1980, more than $135-million has been raised worldwide.

All of those funds support innovative cancer research. The funds are managed and distributed through the National Cancer Institute of Canada.

The Terry Fox Run is said to be the largest single-day fund-raising event for cancer research in the world.

In 1988, the Terry Fox Foundation was formed, becoming a registered charitable public foundation.

The foundation has a dual mandate -- to raise funds for cancer research and to educate young people about Terry Fox and his valiant effort, so their lives might be enriched by his example and inspired by his courage.

Funds are raised primarily through the annual Terry Fox Run and the sole beneficiary of those funds is the National Cancer Institute of Canada. Early detection, treatment and cures for all types of cancer are the goals of the institute.

Thousands of volunteers are involved in the organization of Terry Fox Runs across Canada. More than a half-million participants take part in the events.

Last year, 34 countries besides Canada, including China, Russia, Germany, England, Ireland, Australia and various locations across the United States held Terry Fox Runs. More than $1.3-million was raised at 251 international run sites.

The total for 1993 was $8.5-million.

On the local scene, Barb Nangle and Debbie Hilkers are organizers of the event.

Hilkers can be contacted at 457-5371 or 457-9655 and Nangle can be contacted at 489-3706.

Pledge sheets are available at all Liquor Control Board outlets and the Subway Sandwich outlet in Minden.

Anglers, canoeists "extra careful"

The Ministry of Natural Resources reports that anglers and canoeists are among the most careful people with fires in the Bancroft-Haliburton region.

"None of the 82 forest fires we've had in the Bancroft-Haliburton region this season, we're happy to report, were caused by fishermen or canoeists," said Chris Cowan of the ministry's fire operations headquarters in Haliburton. "We'd like to thank them for being extra careful this year."

Cowan says he hopes hunters will be as careful this fall.

"With the fall hunting seasons approaching, we would like to remind all hunters to be careful with fire," he said.

Cowan added that those hunters who have campfires should make sure that all fires are completely out before they leave the site.

Everyone loves a parade

Despite the threat of inclement weather, the 130th edition of the Haliburton County Fair managed to dodge the rain drops for most of the weekend. One of the highlights each year is the parade through Minden Saturday at noon. This year's effort attracted a delightful array of costumed characters, floats, antique vehicles, clowns and more. The photos here capture just some of the excitement of this year's parade. Due to press deadlines, results and more photos from this year's fair will be featured in next week's edition of The Times.

Clockwise from the above: The Haliburton Legion Pipe band; the Oshawa Shiners were back with their band and mini motorcycles; many antique vehicles were featured; the colour party from the Minden branch of the Royal Canadian Legion; this time, in the Hyland Crest entry, the cat 'n' the fiddle ran away with the spoon; a youngster waves to the parade participants.

Techni-cal Challenge set for January 21 and 22

The Minden Sled Dog Derby Committee has announced that the 1995 edition of the world's largest limited-class speed race for sled dogs will be held on January 21 and 22.

Thanks to the continuing support of the race sponsor, Martin Pet Foods, the 11th running of the Minden Techni-cal Challenge will again offer the largest sled-dog racing purse in North America outside of Alaska.

In addition to the purse of $25,000, Martin Pet Foods, the maker of Techni-cal Dog Food, is providing $17,000 in promotional support for the event, for a total commitment of $42,000.

Race Governor Val Lougheed expressed her appreciation of Martin's and their continuing support for the annual race. "The people at Martin Pet Foods have been truly supportive both of our race and of the sport of sled-dog racing in general," she said. "Dealing with them is a real pleasure because they want to make this the best race in the world for both spectators and mushers — and so do we."

This winter's Minden Techni-cal Challenge will once again feature up to 75 teams competing in the eight- and four-dog classes. The Main Street start and finish ensure spectators a ring-side view of the exciting action provided by these outstanding athletes, both human and canine. The kid-and-mutt race, which is held after the official heats on Saturday, is a treat for young and old. Everyone is also welcome to visit the dog-lot, where the trucks are parked, to talk with the mushers and look over the dogs and puppies.

The two days of racing will offer other attractions for spectators, including the chance to try out the Scandinavian sport of kick-sledding.

Drifter, the race's human-sized husky mascot, will be on hand to greet visitors, especially the children.

"Catch The Drift", a country-rock song about the derby, written and recorded by local musicians, will be the theme song for the weekend once again.

All these features ensure the continuing special place the Minden Techni-cal Challenge holds as both a major event on the sled-dog racing circuit and a unique winter weekend for the whole family.

Weapons turned in during amnesty

Handguns and rifles continue to be the weapons most frequently turned over to authorities during the 90 day Ontario amnesty.

Figures released today by the Chief Provincial Firearms Office located at Ontario Provincial Police Headquarters reveal that during week 10 of the amnesty 116 pistols and revolvers and 102 rifles were surrendered to the OPP and to municipal police services. As well, 47 shotguns and 28 non-firearm weapons were forfeited.

Total items collected between Wednesday, June 1, 1994 and Saturday, August 6, 1994, are as follows: 692 handguns; 97 military assault-type weapons; 465 shotguns; 942 non-restricted rifles; 356 "near firearms", consisting of pellet guns, BB guns, starter pistols and replica firearms; 418 explosive devices, consisting of sticks of dynamite and pieces of military ordnance; 104,418 bullets and shotgun shells; and 187 non-firearm weapons, such as crossbows, machetes, mace and martial arts devices.

Weapons and explosives may be surrendered to any police service in Ontario until August 31, 1994. However, police should be contacted prior to any movement of explosives.

Waterways report

With some rain (30-40 mm) on Thursday, August 4, over the watersheds and only a six-day week since the previous Tuesday the lakes in Haliburton only declined about two per cent to 80.6 per cent by Monday, August 8. This is still 8.5 per cent higher than the 19-year average. Flows from the Gull and Burnt tributary rivers have been correspondingly higher, with the Gull running about 25 cubic metres per second compared to the normal 18.7.

The Kawartha's went through another surplus situation as well and higher outflows were needed to control it. Flow of the Otonabee reached 74 cubic meters per second over last weekend (August 6-7) compared to the normal 32.5. At this writing (August 12), the levels have returned to normal and the flow has been reduced in the Otonabee.

When the Four Seasons Country Store held its truckload sale in June, the Stanhope Fire Department came a little closer to getting a new truck. Fred Chapple agreed to donate 50 cents from each case of goods sold, towards the rescue vehicle, and last Thursday he presented a cheque worth $300 at the Firefighters Spaghetti Dinner. The firefighters also took advantage of Four Seasons sale event to sell raffle tickets. The firemen are attempting to raise $50,000 for the new vehicle. With the donation from Four Seasons and another contribution of $2,000 from the Minden Lions, they have now raised almost $9,000. Open houses help sell homes

The following article is provided by the Haliburton County Real Estate Board in cooperation with the Ontario Real Estate Association.

If you've ever bought or sold a home, you're probably familiar with open houses and the role they can play in the sale or purchase of a home. Open houses are a marketing tool which can help give a home exposure, allowing several potential purchasers to view properties over the course of a day or two — usually on a weekend.

In addition to holding open houses for the public, real estate practitioners also conduct open houses for other real estate professionals. This gives them a chance to promote their listings with other practitioners who may have suitable buyers who would be interested in these particular properties.

Hints for Vendors

If you're a vendor, your real estate professionals will provide you with some helpful hints on how to make your property more marketable.

First of all, your property should be in top-notch condition to create a favourable and lasting first impression with potential buyers. Keep your lawn trimmed and tidy. Also make sure that all trees, hedges and shrubs look neat — not unruly. Trim branches that block the view of your home and hide some of its best assets.

Repair any unsightly cracks or holes in your walkway or steps that could prove to be a safety hazard. And don't leave tools and toys strewn around the front or backyards. These detract from your home, making it look like an obstacle course. They could also prove to be hazardous if someone tripped over them.

If your trim or siding looks dirty, wash it using an appropriate cleaning solution. (Your hardware store can probably give you tips on what's best to use). And if your paintwork is peeling or blistering, it's time for some cosmetic surgery. A little paint can go a long way to enhance the marketability and appeal of your home. If you're unable to tackle the job yourself, hire a professional for best results.

Indoors

Indoors, open up curtains and blinds to let in as much natural light as possible. This helps show your home to its best advantage. And be sure to move any clutter out of sight and rearrange furniture that might impede traffic flow.

Rooms should also be thoroughly aired and as fresh as possible — particularly if you have pets or someone in your family is a smoker.

Your Realtor will recommend that you leave the premises during the open house to help make prospective buyers feel as comfortable and relaxed as possible. If you're in the house, purchasers are likely to be more intimidated and reluctant to give your home the thorough viewing it deserves.

You want people to fully appreciate all the attributes your home has to offer — and they may not feel like opening closets and cupboards or talking about decorating possibilities if you're in the house.

Make arrangements for you, your children and pets to have a day-long outing during the open house. (After all, you don't want Fido jumping on or barking at prospective buyers — and you certainly don't want purchasers to mistakenly let Fluffy, your indoor cat, out the back door.)

Secure Valuables

Before you leave, put all personal property like jewelry, medications and fragile items well out of harm's way, in a safe, secure, storage place. Don't leave any money lying around. To make sure everything is secure and ready to receive visitors, quickly inspect your home with your Realtor just before you leave.

Realtors know that it's important to control traffic in and out of open houses and to have a register for all visitors to sign.

If you have any particular concerns about the open house, don't be afraid to talk to your Realtor to see what suggestions he or she might have.

Tips for Buyers

On the flip side of the coin, if you're a buyer attending open houses, keep in mind that viewing an open house is a privilege.

Also keep in mind that the Realtor on duty is acting as host of the open house on the vendor's behalf. The salesperson should be treated with respect.

It's also important to refrain from wandering through the house without the salesperson present. If the Realtor is busy, wait until he or she is able to show you around. After all, the real estate professional will be able to point out the features of the home and answer any questions you may have.

When attending open houses, it's also important to clarify up front who you're working with — particularly if you've been viewing homes with another real estate professional. Keep in mind that the Realtor you're working with has gone to a lot of effort on your behalf and won't get paid a commission if you switch to another Realtor.

NOTICE OF AERIAL SPRAYING

"As part of the Ministry of Natural Resources' ongoing program to regenerate and protect our forest, a 55-hectare tract of Crown land will be sprayed with Vision herbicide to control competing vegetation prior to prescribed burning and tree planting. The location is in Hindon Twp., 9 km west of Kushog Lake. Spraying will be carried out on September 7, or the first suitable spray date thereafter."

For further details about the program, including specific locations and maps, contact Edward Cyr at the Minden Area Office, of the Ministry of Natural Resources. (Telephone 286-1521).

People Who Make a Difference

Faith Aggett is prepared for any challenge

by Kelly Pettinger

Faith Aggett is more than your average mother. When it comes to her children, or other people's children, she is always ready to laugh, support, guide, play, and most of all, love.

Ever since her own childhood, Aggett has enjoyed the company of children. She joined groups such as Girl Guides and took dance lessons to be with other children, and to discover new talents she might possess. She took jazz, ballet, tap, but particularly enjoyed highland dancing. When she was about 16, she received a dance teacher's certificate and dedicated herself to helping her dance teacher. Still, she hoped to one day open her own dance school.

In 1979 her dreams came true when she moved to Minden. Her determination, dedication and hours of hard work allowed Aggett to open her own highland dance school.

"It was pretty slow at first because everybody wanted their little girl or boy to join jazz or ballet. They would phone up and ask what I taught and I would tell them highland dance. Most said, 'Oh I was looking for ballet.' It was difficult at first, but after awhile it caught on and more and more people were joining," said Aggett.

Although she was able to be with children many nights of the week, Aggett decided to open her own day care centre out of her home. "Having four little kids myself, it was a great idea. We always had kids around for my children to play with. There was never a dull moment in my house when I had the day care," said Aggett.

But this year she decided to give up the dance school and her day care to spend more time with her family. "Everybody is getting older and I have to keep up with that. I loved doing the day care and the dance, but I do need more time to spend with my family and myself. I help my husband, Paul, more with the maintenance of the (University of Toronto Survey Camp) grounds. But it still seems like I am always on the go," she said.

Perhaps she has little time on her hands because of her incredible involvement with the Girl Guides of Canada. Since she was two years old, the Guides have been a part of Aggett's life. "When I was two, my mother was a Brownie Leader. She dragged me along to the meetings and I was the Brownie mascot. Since I wasn't old enough, or big enough, to wear the uniform, one was made for me. It was a little green outfit, and I guess I loved it. I don't really remember it, but I know it was my job to sit under the toadstool during the meetings," she said with a laugh.

After working her way through Brownies and Girl Guides, she missed the feeling of friends and fun one receives with the guiding experience, so eight years ago, Aggett, now 40, applied to be a Girl Guide leader.

"It was mainly my daughters who got me back into Guiding. A friend of mine was a leader and she needed help with her group, so I decided that I did want to help, and by December she moved out of town, and I had a large Girl Guide group to lead by myself. It certainly was a challenge. But I loved it. Being a Girl Guide and Brownie when I was little, I knew how much fun it was and I wanted my girls to have that same experience I did, and without a leader there wouldn't be any Girl Guides.

Again, because of her dedication, she was chosen to be the Girl Guide Commissioner for the Highland district three years ago. "My district is a rather large one. It goes from Coboconk right up to Wilberforce. I'm responsible for all of the units, Sparks, Brownies, Guides, Pathfinders, in my district. I have to find leaders for all of the groups. If the leaders have any questions, they bring them to me. I have monthly meetings with the leaders and I am the in-between person in the patrol system, so I have division meetings I have to go to in Lindsay, and then I bring back all of the information from that and share it with everybody."

When asked if there is a lot of work for a Commissioner to do over the summer, Aggett laughs, "This summer I thought I was going to catch up with my paperwork and have everything ready for the fall. This is a new role for me, and it has been challenging me. It's an administrative role and I'm certainly not used to it, but I'm learning. There could be four new units opening in Carnarvon, Haliburton, Wilberforce and Coboconk. So I have to find leaders for those groups. It's pretty hard to find leaders, because it's not like it used to be. Mothers work now, and they don't have the time that our mothers had years before. Last year, our Pathfinder unit in Minden had four leader so they only had to go to one meeting a month. It's compromises like that, mothers can deal with," said Aggett.

She has seen many changes made to the Girl Guides since she was one herself about 25 years ago. Since she was a Guide, the uniform has changed its look at least five times, activities have changed from baking and sewing to more modern skills such as computers. "The Girl Guides of Canada decided to make these changes about two years ago. They were made to reflect our changing society," said Aggett.

The other main change was a line in the Guide Promise. The original line said, "...to do my duty to God, the Queen and my country..." The Guides are now able to substitute their own religious belief in place of the reference to 'God'. Saying 'the Queen' has also been taken out. "The Queen was removed from the promise because the Girl Guides of Canada thought that we know she is a part of our country and 'the country' was the next part of the line so they thought they should take it out."

Even though the Girl Guides have changed since she was one herself, Aggett refuses to let any changes slow her down any or discourage her from keeping up with the fast pace of the '90's Girl Guide. "I do like a challenge, but only if it is thrown at me. My period as the district Commissioner will be over next year, but I will continue to be a leader for the Guides because it is a lot of fun," she said.

... the obvious choice

One of the most important elements that was introduced at a meeting for the development of a bioregional atlas of the region was an Adopt A Map Program. The meeting was held at the Haliburton County Museum in Haliburton recently.

The steering committee for the project came up with the Adopt A Map Program, whereby one or two people would take responsibility for the content and production of each map in the bioregional atlas.

"That way, we won't have to have a large group of people agreeing on every map," said Anna

Gibson, a Trent University student who is working on the project.

Gibson said that the names of the people who supervised the production of each map would have their names appear on the map.

"It will also give people a chance to become involved in the project," she added.

A revised list of 30 bioregional maps was approved by the committee.

Maps identifying such diverse subjects as natural features, sources of pollution and its path through the environment, political divisions (past and present), the "story" of the river systems, economic issues, emergency and public services, changes in forests, population densities and settlement, transportation and wildlife distribution are among the proposed subjects.

Gibson is the co-ordinator of the steering committee. Other members include Bryan Brown, Deborah Hilkers, Susan Wilson and Tom Ballantine.

All of the committee members will have copies of the proposed list of maps. Anyone interested in becoming involved in the project may contact one of the committee members to receive a copy of the list.

On July 13, the Child Care Forum of Haliburton and community members met with two facilitators from the Volunteer Leadership and Development Program of the United Way.

The Child Care Forum is a volunteer planning body that supports families and the community by promoting and enhancing a full range of quality child care options.

The purpose of the meeting was to use the goals designed by the Forum and develop objectives and action plans for the next 18 months.

The morning proved to be very successful as detailed action plans were developed for each of the following goals. The first goal is to advocate on behalf of families and their child care needs. This goal includes, advocating and lobbying for emergency child care subsidies.

Secondly, to establish and maintain a strategy for continued planning and research on child care issues. This next goal includes forming a working committee to assist the Community Child Care Developer in assessing the child care needs of Haliburton County.

Thirdly, to raise community awareness of child care issues. A new Training and Development Committee will be formed as part of this goal.

Finally, to establish and maintain links among the child care community and government. Establishing and maintaining linkages with the new Haliburton County Children's Services Board will be one of the objectives for this goal.

Forum members encourage families and anyone interested in child care issues to join them in fulfilling the action plans needed to achieve the above-mentioned goals.

Please call the Forum at 457-1888 for more information.

TVOntario

TVO brings world to your fingertips

by Susan Wilson

One Friday evening some months ago, while dinner was cooking, I turned on the television — and I felt I could have been living in Kansas! CKVR was showing All in the Family and Global and CKCO were both showing those American "infotainment" magazine shows that pass for journalism.

Don't get me wrong — I like All in the Family. My point is that there was nothing on the tube to reflect where I live, and nothing to reflect any world-view but the one developed south of the border.

If nothing else — and we all know there's lots else — TVOntario brings a diversity of viewpoint about the world that simply isn't available on American television. (One could work up a fine umbrage about the fact that Canadian channels can get away with so much non-Canadian programming, but that's another issue.)

For all the wonderful things one can say about Americans — and there's lots in that category too — they do tend to have an ethnocentric view of the world. Too often they are unaware that people in other countries and other cultures have other ways of doing things, or thinking about things, or addressing issues, or solving problems.

As a fervent supporter of Peter Gzowski's crusade against what he calls "the Americanization of practically everything," I am a fan of cultural diversity and believe that it's important for the human race to retain lots of different ways of doing things.

On average between its two channels (TVO and La Chaine), the TVOntario network broadcasts 85 per cent Canadian content. That includes programming that reaches beyond the mainstream. Distant Voices, for instance, profiles individuals in First Nations communities in northern Ontario. This acclaimed series, hosted by Sister Eva Solomon, is now in its fourth season. (See programming highlights below.)

Through its co-production agreements with a hundred countries around the globe, TVOntario also brings many other views of the world to the small screen. There are those marvellous British shows of every stripe. There is Heimat, from Germany. In the ten-part Family series alone, TVOntario is bringing stories from nine other countries (plus one about a Canadian family, produced by TVOntario) — countries as far apart as Japan and Brazil and India.

So not only do we need TVOntario for academic benefit, for our seniors and our children, for our artistic awareness — we need TVOntario because it brings the world to us.

Keep those letters coming!

Our thanks to every one of the two dozen people who've written letters to Queen's Park asking for off-air access to the TVOntario signal. And we need as many more letters as we can get. Will you help? Please call Marge Cartwright at 457-9660; she'll send you some information outlining the issues and indicating where the letter should be sent.

Highlands on TVO:

A TVOntario crew came to the Haliburton Rotary Carnival on August 3rd and spent part of the afternoon and evening shooting footage for the video version of their annual report. They are featuring our efforts to get access to the TVOntario signal. The hour-long show will be broadcast on Saturday, September 10, at 8:00 p.m., pre-empting the first hour of Saturday Night at the Movies. Tune in — if you can...

Program Highlights:

The last two episodes of Distant Voices will air this month on the next two Thursdays at 8:30 p.m. On August 18, the half-hour program features broadcaster Jim Morris, one of the developers of the Wawatay Native Communication Society. On August 25, Betty-Lou Grawbadger and her sister Donna work to complete construction of a medicine lodge begun by their late father, Dan Pine, who was a respected herbal and spiritual healer.

Susan Wilson represents Haliburton County on TVOntario's Southcentral Regional Council. If you would like to help get access to the TVO signal or have any other comments, call her at 286-6009. This column appears every four weeks.

Unselfish quest to preserve the Skeena

Rafting the Babine River along a 160-kilometre arc above Smithers, B.C., we are transported back in time. For three days, the only hint of the existence of other people is the whisper of a far off jet. Away from the familiar urban setting, we live by a different rhythm and rules and see through different eyes. There is much to think about and time to do it.

"Daddy, is it safe to drink the water?" my daughter asks, reminding me how much our world has changed since camping in my childhood when we just drank from rivers and lakes without worry. Her whoop of delight when I answer "yes" reassures me that the simple joy of a pristine environment persists.

Hundreds of eagles precede us in a steady relay. Drifting by rock strata pointing straight up, we can only speculate at the forces that caused these geological upheavals. And everywhere we wonder at trees that have somehow found a foothold on rock cliffs and whole forests growing out of thin topsoil coating solid stone.

From where we start just below Babine Lake to our finish at the Kispiox River, the water drops almost 500 metres, creating spectacular scenery and a navigational challenge. We meet the early arrivals of the sockeye salmon run. They leap past one of the hundreds of obstacles on the way to spawning channels almost 1,000 kilometres from the sea. And all along the route, fewer and fewer evade the deadly gauntlet of predators depending on them.

We sight 12 grizzly bears, perhaps 10 per cent of the population in this watershed, and watch three of them fishing in a narrow canyon. Wild and free, they are extremely wary of humans and almost always vanish with a shout. But as the relentless pressure of human activity encroaches on their homes, bears can't just move away or squeeze in tighter. I wonder how much room we will leave for these magnificent

When such an area is developed, an exquisitely balanced and complex ecosystem thousands of years in the making vanishes in a geological blink.

Reflections

by David Suzuki

animals for whom this is ancestral land.

At each camp site, the children are respectful but unafraid. They know the bears will give us wide berth if we are careful and make noise. River guides tell stories of urban dwellers for whom this kind of wilderness is terrifying because it is beyond human control and predictability. Yet it is exhilarating and somehow reassuring to discover forces of nature still intact and beyond our comprehension and domination.

For four days, the forest around is intact, untouched by road or logging, but at the junction with the Skeena River, we sigh the first patches of clearcuts. A massive fire in 1978 on Cutoff Mountain, gave forest companies an excuse to "salvage" the burned trees by clearcutting. Those companies often argue that fires and outbreaks of insects and disease are natural analogs of clearcuts, but after such logging, there's nothing left to salvage. The unlogged parts of the Cutoff burn have much more vegetation and regrowth. Still standing or fallen dead trees hold the thin soil and nourish a host of organisms including small trees.

Along the Skeena, fresh clearings far exceeding the legal limit of 50 hectares appear on both sides of the river. The cosmetic fringe of trees left on the river banks to appease rafters and kayakers resembles the long side hairs balding men comb across their heads — unsuccessful coverups that let light through the tops of the riverbanks.

Forest companies boast that for every tree cut, two or three more are planted, as if a few seedlings crudely stuck in the ground are an equal exchange for trees hundreds of years old. But a mature tree bears hundreds of cones, each producing hundreds of seeds. Of tens of thousands of seeds, perhaps a few hundred will actually sprout and begin to grow while only a few dozen may reach small treehood. Of them a handful may reach full maturity. Every merchantable tree then, is a survivor of tens of thousands of mini experiments, not two or three seedlings.

The forests, fish and bears here, as in most parts of the planet, are threatened by the relentless demands of human numbers, consumption and economics. Those calling for the preservation of areas like the Babine River basin are called greedy because only a few hundred people may actually experience it annually. But when such an area is developed, and exquisitely balanced and complex ecosystem thousands of years in the making vanishes in a geological blink.

Human beings have needs that are more than just physical and social; we are spiritual animals. I believe we have a built-in need to experience wilderness and nature, a craving that can be partially fulfilled by knowing that there are such cathedrals to nourish the soul. In trashing wilderness areas that only time and nature create, we diminish ourselves with the loss of an integral component of our spiritual makeup.

IN MEMORIAM

JOHNSON: In memory of Morley, who passed away August 23, 1993 and Dad who passed away May 7, 1979. Memories grow more precious still.

When loved ones have to part,
But remain forever blooming
In the gardens of our hearts.
Forever loved and remembered by Mum, Keith, Phyllis, Joy and their spouses and families.

STAMP, Shirley: In loving memory of a special mother and Gramma who left us August 20, 1993.

The sound of your voice that we heard each day,
Makes us miss you more in every way.

The smile, the frown upon your face,
Is a feeling inside we'll never erase.

The thoughts of you near we wish could come true,
As now you are gone, we dearly miss you.

Your tender touch, your warm kindful thoughts,
Brings back many memories that will never be forgot.

As each day passes we miss you so,
As we've asked many times why did you have to go?

Always remembered in a special place in our hearts and will always be sadly missed by her children, Terri, John, and Joanne and her special granddaughter Courtney.
